

How do you feel about your stuff?

Researchers at the University of Sheffield are looking for individuals to take part in a research study exploring how people (aged 18+) feel towards their possessions.

We are looking for 3 different groups of people to take part in the study: 1) people with hoarding problems, 2) people who view themselves as a collector and 3) people who do not hoard or collect items.

The study has three stages:

1. Completion of a series of online questionnaires (approximately 30 – 45 minutes)
2. Re-completion of one online questionnaire two weeks later (approximately 5 minutes)
3. A brief telephone interview (approximately 10 – 30 minutes)

You will need to agree to all three stages to take part in the study. Not everyone will be contacted to complete stage 3.

If you would like to take part in this study or would like further information please go to:

<http://www.smartsurvey.co.uk/s/PossessionsStudy1>

If you would like further information about the study you can contact the researcher Claire Spence directly at pcp12ces@sheffield.ac.uk

Note: Ethical approval has been granted for this study by the University of Sheffield